Tues 28 July: 10 travel news stories you need to know
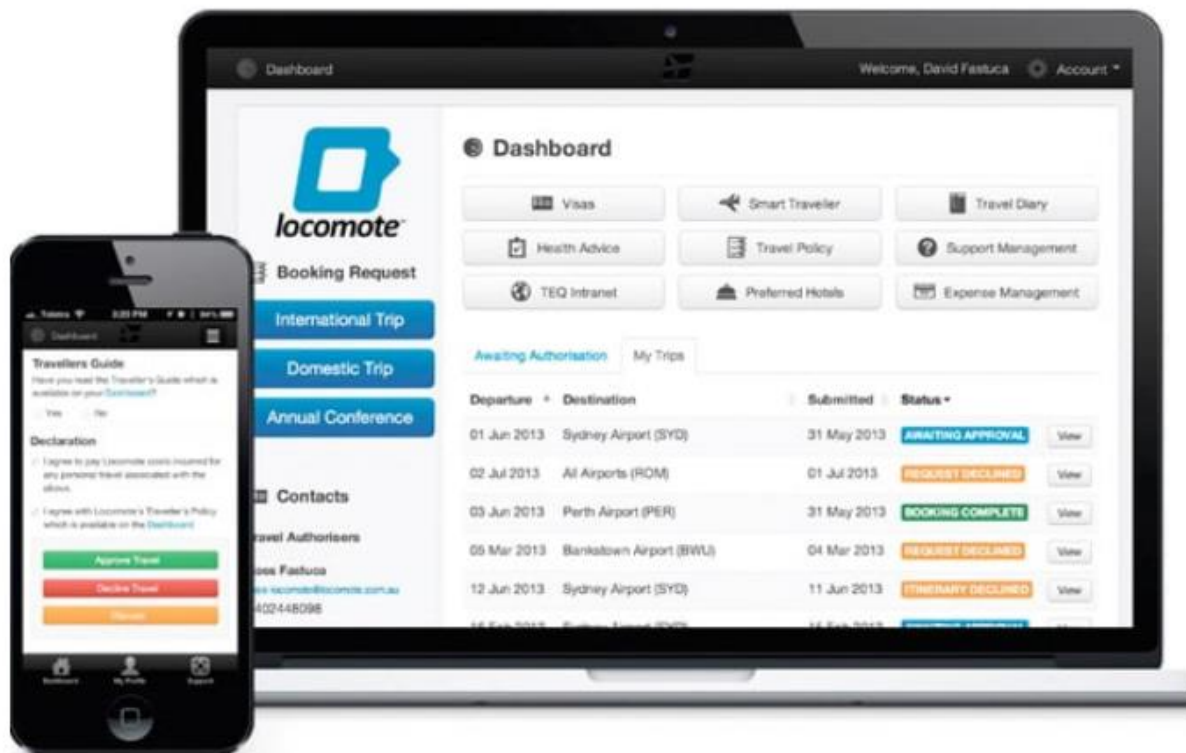

KARRYON | 28 Jul 2015

Need To Know, Travel Industry News

8. Expensify integrate with Locomote

Australian travel tech company, Locomote, has integrated with global expense management platform Expensify, to simplify business travel.

The partnership aims to make corporate travel a more integrate experience by connecting all the tools needed to plan, book and report business trips in real-time.

How will it work?

Expensify's SmartScan that captures payments data directly from receipts will sync with Locomote's travel solution, which enables companies to manage every aspect of their business travel, including authorisations, duty of care, budgets, expenses and more.

This will allow businesses to have complete control and visibility of their employee travel spend, will import all transactions into the accounting package and create a report-based on itinerary dates and incurred expenses.

> "The Locomote platform, which now includes a seamless integrated expense management system, will simplify business travel for employees, travel managers, financial departments and everyone in between."

Philip Weinman, Locomote CEO & Executive Chairman