

Locomote, Regus travelling together

f Share

t Tweet

in Share

Share

By Peter Dinham

Australian travel and expense technology company Locomote has partnered with global workspace provider Regus to offer Regus business customers an end-to-end corporate travel management solution.

The partnership will see businesses offered the opportunity to organise every aspect of their employees' travel, including authorisations, bookings, duty of care, procurement and expenses with Locomote's user-friendly interface.

Andre Sharpe, Regus Chief Innovation and Information Officer, says the partnership with Locomote will allow Regus to provide an innovative corporate travel solution tailored to customer's needs, enabling them to have a "holistic view of their travel and expenses management, lowering their companies' corporate travel costs".

"We want to work with partners that can provide relevant business benefits to our customers and who understand our underlying philosophy of helping businesses succeed whatever the economic climate. Travel is a major expense to our customers and Locomote has developed a solution that will meet the needs of our customers. We very much look forward to this partnership developing."

Philip Weinman, CEO and Executive Chairman of Locomote, says that the tech-driven platform is a great fit for Regus.

“We’ve focused on developing a seamless platform which is designed to make booking travel simple and intuitive. As a global, tech-driven company, we’re excited to partner with a similar-minded company. This partnership with Regus will allow us to take the Locomote platform to a new audience.

“We’ll be ensuring that Regus customers have access to support 24/7, they’ll be able to make bookings both online and offline; but most importantly, they will be able to use the platform to lower the total cost of travel.”

Published in Market

Tagged under #Locomote #regus #workplace #Travel industry #Travel Management services #Australia #Peter Dinham #Travel tech

Peter Dinham

Peter Dinham - retired and is a "volunteer" writer for iWire. He is a veteran journalist and corporate communications consultant. He has worked as a journalist in all forms of media – newspapers/magazines, radio, television, press agency and now, online – including with the Canberra Times, The Examiner (Tasmania), the ABC and AAP-Reuters. As a freelance journalist he also had articles published in Australian and overseas magazines. He worked in the corporate communications/public relations sector, in-house with an airline, and as a senior executive in Australia of the world's largest communications consultancy, Burson-Marsteller. He also ran his own communications consultancy and was a co-founder in Australia of the global photographic agency, the Image Bank (now Getty Images).